BARR '08
LIBERTY FOR AMERICA

Dear Reverend Warren,

I recently wrote Saddleback church in regards to your upcoming candidate forum with Senators Barack Obama and John McCain. While I was delighted to see the first opportunity for discourse among the candidates of the 2008 presidential election, I was disappointed to find that Libertarian presidential candidate Bob Barr has not yet been extended an invitation. I recognize that it would be impossible to accommodate all candidates running in 2008; however, Bob Barr's campaign is unique in that he is one of the three significant candidates in this race—the other two of course being McCain and Obama.

According to the only truly comprehensive survey, conducted by noted pollster John Zogby, Congressman Barr is now polling at 6 percent nationwide, and even in double digits in some states. It is hard to dismiss the impact that Barr will have in 2008 election.

I'm sure you understand the importance of hearing all voices in any debate because this creates a competition of ideas. We feel that Bob Barr's entry into your forum will not only inform more people about the virtues of a party dedicated to free market principles and personal responsibility—two issues I know you personally believe strongly in—but will also encourage deep thought and reflection by all those in attendance.

We sincerely hope you will include Bob Barr in the upcoming forum, and we look forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely,

Russell Verney
